

BATTLE PLANES STOP ATTACK ON CAPITAL

Washington Saved From Being
Blown to Bits Theoretically
From Air.

INVASERS FORCED DOWN

Defending Fliers, Quick to Respond to Alarm, Show
Superior Skill.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Washington was "saved" from "enemy" air raiders to-day when a defending squadron of army planes, warned by scouts, took the air and repelled the invaders in a desperate theoretical encounter. The victory of the defense was complete. The entire fleet of five hostile bombers was "captured" and after surrender of the pilots all hands went to lunch at Bolling Field.

The attacking force consisted of five Martin bombers which left Langley Field this morning and under leaden skies and through obscuring rain drove toward Washington, intent on bombing the White House, Treasury, Navy Yard, War College, the Capitol and other important Government structures. Word that the enemy was on the way was all that reached the defending forces at Bolling Field.

Three big scouting planes, equipped with radio instruments, shot into the air and circled southward, groping for contact with the enemy. Low visibility hampered their work, but finally the enemy machines were spotted down the Potomac below Alexandria and the word was flashed by radio to Bolling Field, while the scouts maneuvered to keep the hostile craft in sight. Back at the field three diminutive fighting planes of the type used by the air "aces" overseas shot up, circling their way into the banked clouds. They had scarcely disappeared from sight overhead before three heavier fighting craft followed them into the lofty ambush that was being laid for the enemy.

The five big planes from Langley came on toward the target buildings they sought and began swooping to the attack. From the clouds above dropped the six defending planes and the battle of Washington was on. The fighters circled and twisted around the enemy machines in every maneuver of battle practice, picking off the bombing planes one at a time until the last of the quiet had been forced to earth theoretically.

The actual landing of all the planes was made at Bolling Field, where the umpire ruled that the enemy had been repulsed and captured.

BEVERIDGE TO ADDRESS BIBLE REVISIONISTS

Will Speak Here at Fiftieth Anniversary.

The fiftieth anniversary of the first meeting of the committee on the American revision of the Holy Scriptures will be observed November 16 with a public meeting in the Brick Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Thirty-seventh street. The principal address will be made by Albert J. Beveridge, formerly United States Senator from Indiana.

The committee's work lasted for thirty years. The meeting this year will be the first public tribute paid to it.

ISHAMS WERE NOT DIVORCED.

Provision in Will Merely Pin
Money, Says Widow.

Mrs. Juliet C. Isham, widow of Henry Heyward Isham of Elizabeth, N. J., said yesterday that she desired to correct the impression that she and Mr. Isham had been divorced. She said this was not the case, although they lived apart for twenty-seven years.

Mrs. Isham, who is the great-granddaughter of John C. Calhoun, has a beautiful estate at Shelter Island Heights and has a fortune left by her own people. The will of Mr. Isham, which was offered for probate Tuesday, disposed of an estate of $1,544,735. He directed that she be given $25 a week. Mrs. Isham said, however, that he had simply provided for her before his death and that the $25 a week was "merely pin money."

AID FOR DESTITUTE MINERS.

Mayor Hylan's committee which investigated conditions in the Pennsylvania coal fields opened an office in room 1224, Municipal Building, yesterday, where donations of clothing, food and money for destitute miners will be received. Mrs. Louis Reed Weizsaecker, Deputy Commissioner of Markets and chairman of the committee, is in charge.

DAVIS DEFENDS U. S. RAILROAD CONTROL

Alfred P. Thom Gives Approval to Transportation
Act Principles.

TRAFFIC LEAGUE MEETS

Fear Voiced That Election Has Upset Vital Program in Congress.

Problems involved in the liquidation of the Government's liability growing out of the Federal operation of railroads were discussed yesterday before the annual meeting of the National Industrial Traffic League at the Commodore Hotel by James C. Davis, Director-General of the United States Railroad Administration.

Mr. Davis in discussing the claims presented by the carriers took occasion to reply to the critics who maintain that the Government failed in its obligation to return the railroads to the owners in good condition. "It is a matter of common report that the railroads at the end of Federal control were returned to their owners in a much worse physical condition than when they were taken over," Mr. Davis declared.

After citing statistics of the Government expenditures on maintenance of way, locomotives, freight cars, structure and car maintenance, he asserted that "the Government during Federal control did everything humanly possible to maintain the property in its possession at the same standard of maintenance established by the owners during private control and operation." Mr. Davis said, however, that it was unquestionably true that the railroads suffered an economic damage, in that they were returned insolvent and faced with the unpopular and difficult task of adding an increase in rates and a reduction in wages.

Alfred P. Thom, general counsel and acting chairman of the Association of Railway Executives, who spoke on "Transportation" at the league dinner at the Commodore Hotel, although alluding bitterly to what he called the Government's failure to keep its covenant and return the railroads to their owners in good physical condition and with unimpaired earning capacity, endorsed the principles embodied in the present transportation act. He said that it is accepted as axiomatic that transportation is a vital need, that it must be uninterrupted, and that it must be adequate. The public also recognizes, he asserted, that transportation is subject to ordinary economic law, and that the Government has the correlative duty of correction and protection.

The results of the election seem likely to involve a repudiation by Congress of the vital needs of the transportation agencies of the United States, Mr. Thom declared. "What will be your attitude?" was his challenge to the traffic men. "If you want fair and adequate transportation facilities it is your duty to sustain the great principles embodied in the present law."

Six hundred delegates representing traffic organizations, boards of trade and chambers of commerce all over the United States are attending the annual meeting. The closing session will be held to-day.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD, MARION, Ill., Nov. 15.—A fourth juror, George Cox, 21, miner and farmer, was accepted to-day at the Herrin massacre trial. Although he is a member of the miners' union the State views him as fair minded.

What was regarded as a setback for the State came when Judge Hartwell refused to excuse for cause all takersmen who are members of the miners' union, which is contributing by regular assessments to the defense.

The State also asked that jurors be excused for cause if they lived in the county previous to the massacre and knew that trouble was brewing. The Judge said he would rule on each case under this plea when it came up. In this Judge in an informal statement in the jury room said he would remove from the jury any man found to have an actual interest in the case, but said the burden of proving that interest lies with the State.
